Truman Service Results

Truman after three months looks like this: He's "Congress-minded," really consults with members of Congress, appoints them to cabinet, finds them pre-trained in the art of politics.

He's always the "regular Democrat" . . . likes party responsibility, and is much more a regular party man than Roosevelt ever was.

His appointments are probably good. It takes time to evaluate, but most of them look competent . . . as executive, doers.

He seems a good administrator . . . decides promptly and stays put. Sub-officials are happy, saying now they know where the boss stands.

Popularity out around the country is greater than Roosevelt's, for he retains the Rooseveltians, and he adds a number of the anti's. Popular in his own right, too . . . for his "modesty," "plain thinking," "plain manner," "common sense," etc. Never smart, slick, or loquacious.

Gets along well with all groups, both liberals and conservatives. Sees liberals as spark plugs. Doesn't go hunting for new leftist ideas as Roosevelt did, but accepts many liberal ideas when they come along.

Has discarded some Roosevelt men and will discard still others, but hasn't alienated Roosevelt zealots, and probably won't.

Labor is with him, partly because his labor record is very good but mainly because there's nowhere else for labor to go.

Even Republicans speak well of him, say he's done well to date, say he will be tough to beat in '48, but they hope he will stub a toe. They think it will be on domestic issues . . . meat, OPA, prices, strikes.

You Can Help Now

If you find it difficult to get on a train, remember that the railroads and the Pullman Company by order of the Office of Defense Transportation, have withdrawn from service all sleeping cars operating between points 450 miles or less apart. The action was made necessary by unexpectedly heavy arrivals of troops from Europe.

This action makes available an additional 895 Pullman cars and gives the military the exclusive use of about half the sleeping cars operating in the United States. These cars afford a greater measure of comfort to our troops moving to the west coast prior to embarkation to the Pacific theatre.

It is interesting to note that in 1918 with a total of approximately 41,000 coaches and sleeping cars, the railroads performed 42,676,000,000 passenger-miles of service.

In 1944, with approximately 27,700 passenger-carrying cars, the railroads performed 95,575,000,000 passenger-miles and the 1945 passenger load is expected to mount 10 per cent, to more than 100,000,000,000 passenger-miles, or nearly two and one-half times the 1918 passenger load—to be moved in 30 per cent less passenger carrying equipment.

On account of wartime restrictions, the railroads have been unable to buy passenger carrying cars. The hauling job and the maintenance job they have done with the equipment at hand is almost beyond belief. They have rendered service more expeditiously, more courteously and with less waste than in 1918 when there was vastly more equipment, more engines and much more manpower.

You can do your part to help out in the greatest transportation job in history by traveling only when necessary for purposes other than pleasure.

Another Step Toward Socialism

Leading electric utilitymen have expressed strong condemnation of a bill introduced in the Senate to give the Rural Electrification Administration authority to lend upwards of $75,000,000 for the extension of telephone lines in farm areas. More than 6,000 independently owned telephone companies have provided the United States with the greatest telephone service in the world, and will continue to do so.

Having demonstrated our ability to make progress when equipment has been short," said one telephone spokesman, "we find no evidence that such a bill is necessary. The bill presents real possibilities for uneconomic and disadvantageous duplication of telephone facilities. If its purpose is to make telephone service available in rural areas where such service does not exist, telephone companies have similar plans."

The Rural Electrification Administration, from a small beginning as is always the case with public agencies, has grown to be a powerful Federal spending device and is one of the most potent factors in controlling the electric light and power industry in the States. Its entrance into the telephone industry through REA channels, would lead to the same desire to control the telephone industry as to control the electric light and power industry.

These progressive steps toward socialization of the electric utility industry, it will be but a few

Bonds Aweigh—By Sparling

Gomez and Ludwig Stossel. Karloff doing in stuff in some horror scenes that will raise the hair on your toupe. I am sure you will be entertained with this.

"Swing Shift Mazie" is the second picture up. It is a comedy with a fairly easy plot to follow and with good actors and actresses put over. Henry Hull, Ann Southern, James Craig, Jean Rogers, John Qualen, Wiliam Broders, Martha Linden and Connie Gilchrist as the featured players. The plot starts in a restaurant and ends in a plane.

"Saturday brings "Blocked Trails" with titl "Three Mosquitos" as the rowdies who unload a carload of trouble and Western excitement during its filming.

See you at the movies . . . Mal.

Book Shower Success

The Book Shower for the Baptist Church Library was held Friday evening at the church and proved a huge success. A large collection of books and $43.00 in cash was received to become the nucleus of the library. Carolyn Mutchler was selected librarian and Carol Best assistant.

The program for the evening was in charge of Mrs. Olga Hardy and was well enjoyed by the churchgoers and the church members ready for the opening of the season. Each building is 24x30 and is to be constructed of cement blocks with cement asbestos shingles. E. E. Dasher is in charge of construction and is using all local farm labor from their neighborhood. There are nine of their own blocks. Mr. Dasher reports that men can complete 100 blocks per day. It requires approximately 1000 blocks for each building.

Frank Haines, daughter, Mrs. Cecil Perkins and grandsons, Ronald and Pauline have returned from a visit at Frankfort, Indiana. Mrs. Haines will remain until October to continue her asthma treatments. She is visiting her sister, Mrs. C. Brittain.

Idle Dollars

A certain amount of cash is safe as a working balance for everyday expenses. But any sum of money not required for these immediate needs is non-productive. These idle dollars involve a loss of earning power that is quite startling.

For example, ten thousand dollars which are held uninvested and which could earn 5% means a loss of

$1.37 every day

$41.67 every month

$9,67 every year

In addition to this substantial loss of income suffered by holders of idle cash, there is the even more serious loss of principal value which is occurring as prices continue rising, thus decreasing the buying power of dollars not properly invested.

THROUGHOUT Florida are thousands of examples of the beauty of concrete masonry construction—homes, churches and schools. In their variety they exhibit the freedom of design and architectural charm possible with concrete masonry units.

And there's a bonus with this beauty, too. Strong and durable, concrete masonry units are fireproof, termitoofproof, weather-resistant—all important factors in lower maintenance cost.

In step with the swing to this modern type of construction, our concrete products plant is daily producing a greater volume of properly-cured, precision-manufactured units—prepare now, and tomorrow, for the Glades accelerated building program.

That China would be the leading nation some day be a nation which all the world will recognize in its mighty power, and the Yellow race will be given their white brothers plenty of competition.

The speaker gave considerable discussion to the Dumbarton Oaks Conference in Washington and cited that both were powerful instruments for world peace and that this time the U. S. was one of the leading nations in their support. He showed that the preamble of the Frieso charter was very similar to the U. S. Constitution, and included all the rights and privileges for the nations that our own instrument did for us alone.

He stressed the fact that the new World Charter has been the product of the best minds of 50 nations and was only adopted by the fact that popular sentiment was so strong that it was going to be up to the common people to see that it becomes workable and enforceable.

He held that adoption of Enforced Military training in this country would be against the Charter's intent and unless public opinion was aroused against such training, such provision might be provided by act of Congress.

The improved streets of Belle Glade are deteriorating like nobody's business and unless there is some means of getting them repaired and out of the dangerous class, there won't be any streets.

One only needs to drive over some of the streets to quickly find out how chunky and bumpy they are. There are holes in some of them sufficient to damage a car.

There is also one spot just outside of the south city limits where some mad accident is going to happen, unless the big round hole in plugged up with tar or cement and also two bad bumps which are dangerous to public driving.

If you were one of the many who lost escarole, celery, beans or other crops in the field or on the platform last season because of a lack of hampers, crates or precooling space or other facilities necessary to get the money out of your crop, it will be welcome news to know that these handicaps will be relieved somewhat by the additional service offered by the E. H. BORCHARDT CO.

Carloadings for the lake area have increased from 1,598 carloads in 1928-29 to 11,271 in the season just past. This is nearly a tenfold increase (considering the loss in the field) in 15 years. In the same proportion your chances of getting your crop to market have DECREASED because the packing and service facilities HAVE NOT INCREASED IN THE SAME PROPORTION.

The extra capacity afforded by our new building will not begin to take care of the increased production in the area, but it will permit better service to a limited additional acreage.
